PAH PARKING WOE

By BEN WILKINSON, Chief Reporter
 wilkinsonb@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A NEW report into services at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital reveals that PARKING is the number one gripe among town residents.

While cleanliness, waiting times and the quality of food all figured as concerns in the study, the problems associated with parking at the Hamstel Road site – and the charges for doing so – topped the list of moans.

Almost two-thirds of the 1,467 people who responded to the survey carried out by Harlow MP Bill Rammell said they were unhappy at the lack of parking provision and the cost.

That figure dwarfed other concerns of waiting times (381 respondents), cleanliness of wards (197), availability of information (186), cleanliness of public areas (154), quality of food (115) and cancellation of operation (74).

Other issues raised related to specific departments, while 129 said fear of closure or cuts at the hospital preyed on their mind.

PAY AND DISMAY: Parking at Princess Alexandra Hospital was the over-riding concern among people who took part in Harlow MP Bill Rammell's survey on hospital services

But overall the report provides a shot in the arm for PAH, with 89 per cent generally satisfied or very satisfied with services and only 11 per cent unhappy.

This week, Mr Rammell admitted it highlighted problems and he set out recommendations, including re-configuration of parking spaces, improved bus services, better staff training such as English lessons for foreign nurses, a review of cleaning policies and more visitor seating. He also called for better internal and external communications, with improved signage and press liaison.

"This is the biggest response I have ever had to a constituency survey," he said. "The clear message is that people generally see the service at PAH as good – you wouldn't get an 89 per cent satisfaction rate if things were going badly wrong – but in some specific areas, things still are not good enough and I'm hoping to bring about further improvement with this report."

The MP unveiled his report at a public meeting on Saturday and hopes to organise another with hospital bosses in the autumn. PAH NHS Trust chief executive Chris Pocklington said it was one of the most comprehensive public surveys ever about PAH's services and he promised to take a "very close look" at it.

"It is vitally important that we know what our patients think and what they want in terms of services," he said. "It is also very reassuring to hear that such a large proportion of the people who responded rate us so highly."

Lubbock Trust is axed amid row

By CHRIS MOSS

moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A CAMPAIGN to establish the full facts in the death of Stuart Lubbock at the Roydon home of former TV star Michael Barrymore has been thrown into disarray by an acrimonious row.

The bust-up came as it emerged police are investigating allegations of "homophobic hate" on The Lubbock Trust's website.

The trust worked for years to keep Stuart's unsolved death in 2001 in the public eye but has now been formally wound up.

Stuart's father Terry, of Great Brays, Harlow, confirmed this week he has dropped Mr Bennett as his solicitor after Essex Police launched its investigation.

Events came to a head just days after the release of the book Not Aright: Getting Away With Murder – co-authored by Mr Lubbock and Mr Bennett, although it is understood the latter wrote the majority – when Mr Bennett accused trust chairman Harry Cichy, the book's publisher, of selling it on internet auction site eBay without permission.

"This book was never written for anyone's individual profit," said Mr Bennett. "In fact, it was always understood that all sales would go towards the benefit of the trust," he said.

However, Mr Cichy described Mr Bennett as a "stirrer" who was needed by the decision to drop him.

"I want to make it perfectly clear that I never sought to make any money from the book," he said. "All I wanted to do was to raise awareness of the injustice surrounding Stuart Lubbock's death. It is true that a copy of the book was used on eBay, but purely as a marketing tool. I have no hidden agenda – I never even expected the book to make a profit."

Mr Lubbock told the Star: "Some of the stuff on The Lubbock Trust website was attracting negative publicity, which is not what I need at this stage of the campaign, but I'm very grateful for all that Tony has done for the trust in the past and for his work on the

Meanwhile, Chippingfield resident Mr Bennett (59) has expressed his bewilderment at the police investigation into the website which criticises the lifestyle of "predatory homosexuals".

He believes the accusations were malicious and has approached the Independent Police Complaints Commission over his treatment. "There is only factual comment and opinion on the website, and certainly nothing that could be seen as a criminal offence," he insisted.

An Essex Police spokesman said: "A priority of ours is to investigate all reports of hate crime. A full investigation is being conducted to identify whether an offence has been committed."

● DETECTIVES reinvestigating Stuart's death are seeking a statement from a witness in New Zealand – widely reported to be Mr Barrymore's former lover Shaun Davis – although it is not yet clear if they will visit in person or act through local police.

Householder threatened with handgun

A TERRIFIED man was burgled at gunpoint after two men burst into his Epping home on Monday.

The victim, in his 50s, answered the door to his Forest Side home at 11am. The pair barged in, knocking him to the ground, and threatened him with a handgun while demanding to know where he kept his safe.

The victim was taken upstairs while the men searched his home before making off with items including a camera, watches and a computer.

One of the men is described as 25-30, white, 1.73m (5ft 8ins) tall and wearing a black tracksuit and white baseball cap. The other was 30-35, dark tanned, of large build, 1.83m (6ft) tall, wearing dark blue jeans, light brown leather jacket and light baseball cap.

The victim was left with cuts and bruises to his face and was in shock.

Anyone with information should call Detective Constable Dave Crane on (01279) 625443.

School under fire over its non-competitive sports day

A DECISION by a Harlow primary school to axe sports day for a non-competitive replacement has come under fire.

On Monday, Milwards Primary, in Paringdon Road, jettisoned traditional favourites such as the sack race, egg and spoon race, long jump and 100m sprint in favour of games of parachutes, rounders and outdoor curling – all with no winners.

Harlow MP and further education minister Bill Rammell this week complained: "I am very passionate about competitive sports days due to a whole host of qualities and values which, if treated properly, are hugely beneficial."

"Competitive sports days breed teamwork, commitment and understanding and generate a healthy lifestyle. It's progressive and helpful to deliver an acceptance of different outcomes."

The move is at odds with Essex County Council's policy and a new Government initiative. County Hall has been given significant funding as part of a £150m scheme to boost competitive sports in schools.

There was also criticism from the local sports scene, with Harlow Athletic Club chairman Chris Clark claiming children were being done more harm than good by being "wrapped in cotton wool".

But Milwards headteacher Angela Callaway insisted the move prevented less-able children feeling excluded.

"We wanted to try and include children to be involved in the whole morning because we are promoting healthy lifestyles," she said. "A majority of the children will be only competing in two activities and this way they could be active for a while longer."

Asked if some athletic children are missing out on their chance to shine in front of their peers, she added that pupils can still compete in inter-school's competitions.

Council promise on £10m revamp work

By BEN WILKINSON, Chief Reporter
wilkinsonb@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS in areas poised to benefit from £10m of Government regeneration cash have been reassured the work will still take place despite a perceived lack of progress in recent months.

Harlow Council's policy and resources committee was given an update on the five schemes when it met on Thursday and told what should be achieved by next March.

The schemes include the regeneration of Old Harlow, Prentice Place in Potter Street, Clifton Hatch and Staple Tye plus the establishment of a small businesses start-up 'incubation' centre in Edinburgh Way.

But there was concern from some councillors that a lack of work in recent months has led people to believe their schemes have been forgotten.

Simon Carter (Conservative) warned: "I think we need to be careful about raising expectations that something big and major is going to happen imminently if it then doesn't. People now need to be reassured that what we said was going to happen is going to happen at some stage."

Joint council leader Tony Durcan (Labour) agreed. "I think we need to keep people informed," he said. "Even if it's a case of saying we don't have any more info at the moment but we haven't forgotten about you."

Work in Old Harlow will include the extension and refurbishment of the St John's Arts and Recreation Centre and relocation of the community centre there. Garages in Wayre Street will go and a feasibility study will look at the possibility of re-aligning the road. Plans to revamp Victoria Hall Theatre have been scrapped.

At Prentice Place, modifications made as a result of public feedback mean there will be no residential units on Larkwood, although the demolition and rebuilding of retail units and flats will still go ahead.

Staple Tye is to have its library re-located, a new health centre and housing built, relocation of the tennis courts and a new road junction at Abercrombie Way and Southern Way.

Clifton Hatch will get up to 37 new homes, new shops and a community centre to replace existing shops and garages.

The re-named incubation centre – previously called an innovation centre – is due to be open by 2008. Harlow Renaissance is in charge of delivering the projects and chief executive Andrew Bramidge told councillors the change of title was requested by the East of England Development Agency, which is part-funding the facility.

Unanimous support for a blueprint to town regeneration

A REGENERATION strategy to pump life back into Harlow has been approved. The final version of the report, amended to account for views expressed during a public consultation, was presented to Harlow Council's policy and resources committee on Thursday.

The document, intended to collate a number of earlier policies, incorporates other strategies including the Town Park masterplan, town centre strategy, housing strategy, green infrastructure plan, community strategy, and area investment and renewal framework.

It identifies five "core objectives" for Harlow: economic prosperity, education, growth and regeneration, housing and community engagement, and its overarching vision is for the town to become "a sustainable sub-regional centre with a vibrant, diverse and high-performing economy and the infrastructure to support."

In terms of implementation, councillors were assured that within five-10 years, the town would be enjoying the benefits of a regenerated centre, better employment opportunities, a better qualified workforce, better choice of affordable housing and upgraded neighbourhood centres.

The strategy was welcomed by representatives of all three political parties and was passed unanimously. It can be viewed at the Civic Centre.

Drainage work eases threat from flooding

ACTION taken to safeguard residents against flooding after the flash storms of last year has been declared a success.

Harlow Council's scrutiny committee heard on Tuesday that since the torrential downpours last summer which saw dozens of households flooded out, major progress has been achieved clearing gullies and drains. Council emergency planning officer Joe McGill told the committee that there was a considerably higher level of rainfall in June of this year compared to that of last year but with no major flooding in the town.

"I think those figures show the impact of the work we have done," he told councillors, adding that there were still issues to be addressed.

But Mr McGill also called on residents to do their bit, drawing particular attention to a gully behind Berecroft.

"There is so much rubbish dumped along the ditch line," he said. "If we can sort that out I think it will solve a lot of the problems in the Berecroft area, but people have got to recognise that it's important to keep their ditch lines clear."

"If people dump rubbish they are increasing the risk of flooding for themselves and their neighbours."

Summer read is keen on nature

A SUMMER reading challenge to promote environmental responsibility as well as reading is being launched at Harlow Library on Saturday.

The Big Wild Read, run in conjunction with the BBC's Breathing Spaces campaign, will give children the opportunity to find out what they can do to save endangered animals and help protect the environment.

County Hall libraries chief Iris Pummell said: "Children really care about animals and environmental issues and the Big Wild Read is not just a summer reading challenge, it's a call to action for children to make a positive difference to the environment."

Dealer's kiss hid drugs packages

A DRUG dealer arrested by police in Harlow transferred his stash to his girlfriend with a kiss, a court heard.

Richard Manning (33), of Nicholls Field, Harlow, tried to rid himself of evidence by passing his drugs into the mouth of Rachael Kirton (31), of Long Ley, Harlow, as he leant out of the window of a police car, Chelmsford Crown Court was told on Friday.

But the exchange was spotted by security camera operators who alerted police.

Manning pleaded guilty to two charges of possessing drugs with intent to supply and being in breach of a community order imposed for an earlier burglary offence. He was jailed for 13 months.

Kirton – said to be five months pregnant – admitted two charges of possessing drugs and was sentenced to six months imprisonment, suspended for a year.

Pria Khanna, prosecuting, told the court that on January 17 police were dealing with an incident in Harlow town centre when one of the officers recognised Manning, who was wanted for questioning on an unrelated matter.

Manning, who was with Kirton, was arrested and put in a police car. Shortly afterwards, he put his head out of the window and told Kirton "Kiss me".

The camera operator then noticed a white packet being transferred from Manning's mouth to Kirton's.

Kirton pushed it into her mouth with her fingers and walked away. She was then seen to remove two packages from her mouth and secrete them in her underwear.

After police were alerted, Kirton was searched and two packages seized. One contained 10 wraps of crack cocaine and the other 19 wraps of heroin.

Following her arrest, Kirton told police she had no idea what was in the packages and had no involvement in drug dealing. Manning gave a "no comment" interview.

Samantha Leigh, in mitigation for Kirton, said that although she had a previous conviction for possessing drugs, she would welcome the chance to put her life in order.

Chloe Barton, for Manning, said he passed the drugs to Kirton for her own use and never intended to supply them to anyone else.

Petition seeks resignation of college chief

A PETITION calling on Harlow College principal Colin Hindmarch to resign has been circulated around the town.

It has been started by the Harlow College Support Group in response to the restructuring which has resulted in more than 100 lecturers leaving the college.

Many lost their jobs or refused to reapply for their posts, claiming that Mr Hindmarch's teaching and learning strategy may lower their salaries and increase working hours.

The petition states: "... the principal had forfeited the confidence of the community and was putting at risk the future of local young people by his actions and imposing new contracts and making scores of teachers redundant."

More than 50 people signed the petition within an hour in the town centre on Saturday.

Party shows fun side of church

THE lesson for the day was all about having fun at a Harlow church's summer kids' party.

The Redeemer Lutheran Church, in Bush Fair, held its second annual party to raise awareness of its role in the community. A bouncy castle, fishing for ducks, face-painting as well as competitive egg-and-spoon and sack races were enjoyed by dozens of children and their parents.

The Rev Paul Fry said: "We want people to know what goes on behind the white walls of the church and we want them to know we are just like them, and we are believers."

SIR, Your headline “Harlow College in freefall” (Star, July 5) was both shocking and accurate. Under the leadership of principal Colin Hindmarch it has gone from a thriving and successful college with a good reputation to a basket case on the verge of collapse in 10 short months.

The latest instalment in the unfolding catastrophe – the announcement that more than 100 lecturers are being forced out – has sent shockwaves through the town.

Many parents have expressed justified anger that, in all likelihood, there will be no teachers to teach their children in September. And as the University and College Union has a national boycott of posts at the college, there is little prospect of recruiting any.

The situation is critical. The college is haemorrhaging students and is in chaos. UCU members have voted for more strikes during enrolment in September and further action is planned. It is clear the dispute will not be resolved as long as Mr Hindmarch remains in control.

This state of affairs cannot continue. Further education minister Bill Rammell must now respond to the wishes of parents, students and teaching staff and call for the principal’s resignation. Only this can now change the disastrous course of events.

Up to now Mr Rammell has attempted a balancing act between the local community and the college corporation. He can no longer do so because how he acts within the next few days and weeks will decide whether Harlow College can be restored as a thriving place of learning for local people or remain as a pariah college mired in conflict and doomed to decline.

Principal must go if college is to survive

Concern to all

SIR, Our publicly funded tertiary college is in the midst of its worst crisis in its 45-year life.

As the most contentious town issue for a long time, I am amazed at the apparent complete silence from the council, councillors and prospective

COLLEGE IN ‘FREEFALL’

THE Government organisation responsible for funding and planning education and training could step in to try to end the bitter dispute which has led to the collapse of teaching staff at Harlow College.

As a result, many students are being told to leave the college and find other courses elsewhere. The college is now in a state of complete chaos and is unable to accept new students.

Parliamentary candidates on the matter. It should concern them as it concerns a great many students, parents, lecturers and 50+ users.

They are, after all, our representatives and should be involved in seeking an equitable solution.

As an older resident, my particular interest is the apparent ending of all the 50+ activities. There are more than 20,000 of us in the town (25 per cent of the population) and we should be part of the college programme.

Clean sweep

SIR, Harlow College is being brought into disrepute and an atmosphere of strife and disorder. Is this a throwback to a past age when a minority group of disaffected individuals with far left credentials is able to create unrest and involve young students in a dispute over staff members’ financial interests?

Surely the new principal has every right to have a clean sweep and to set out new ground rules for running the college where he is in charge. That’s his job, isn’t it?

The University and College Union, apparently the main promoter of this discontent, has quite a record as political agitators. There is surely no place for this kind of thing in our college.

Having said all that, I have to ask where was our minister for higher education while all this was fermenting? While there should be no place for Government in legitimate trade disputes, this one threatens to undermine the education of Harlow’s young people and is clearly political in nature. Why is this happening under his nose on his watch?

Councillor Joshua Jolles

We can’t pick and choose which laws we will obey

SIR, What did your anonymous correspondent expect from his letter about parking attendants drive shoppers out? (“Parking attendants drive shoppers out”, July 12). Did he expect everyone to think he was hard done by because he was caught committing an offence?

He is honest to a point, but what else did he want, apart from a newspaper, that he had to go to W.H.Smith when there are other shops closer?

Did he time how long it took him to get from The Rows to almost the other end of Broad Walk, buy his paper and get back to his vehicle? If he did he would have been well in excess of five minutes.

We live in an age when, because of the laxity of the application of justice, people believe the law does not apply to them, only to other people. We cannot have a law-abiding society without rules . . . and rules that are applied. We cannot choose which laws we obey. Did your correspondent laugh a few weeks ago when an MP was caught parking in a disabled parking bay at a railway station, or did he say ‘serve him right’?

Go and pay your parking ticket with good grace.

Have you thought that by parking there, causing an obstruction, another motorist who may have wanted to set someone down and drive away could not and has now decided not to come to Harlow again?

D.J. Croager
Felmongers, Harlow

SIR, Further to the letter about parking attendants in Harlow, it seems the council does not want visitors from outside Harlow.

Parking fees are higher on Saturday, the very day in which our town should be full with out-of-town shoppers.

If the council thinks anything about retailers, parking should be free.

But then when we have a greedy council prepared to drain the last penny, how can we expect people to come to the town?

Make smokers pay

SIR, As a non-smoker I think it would be absolutely disgraceful if the clean-up cost of the smoking ban raised our council tax bills (Star, July 12).

I hope councillors do not let this enter their heads as I would refuse to pay any extra costs for people who smoke and cannot dispose of their cigarette ends properly.

A survey should be done of all households to find out where the smokers are so that just their council tax should be more. I am fed up with having to pay for other people’s habits.

Bomb found at work

SIR, Thank you for the article about the television programme Legacy of War which will be featuring Harlow. May I just put right one fact – it was not my home that was burned down but the building where I worked in the shadow of St Paul’s Cathedral.

My boss found new premises in Newgate Street and it was in the small yard at the rear of that building where I found and removed the incendiary bomb.

Dog with huge tumour dumped at RSPCA clinic

ANIMAL welfare officials are trying to trace the owner of a dog with an enormous cancerous tumour after it was abandoned at an RSPCA clinic in Harlow.

A young woman walked into the clinic at The Stow and handed the Staffordshire bull terrier to a man waiting for his pet to be treated. She told him she had left something in her car but never returned.

The dog, thought to be about nine-years-old, had a large malignant tumour about the size of a football on its belly. The tumour has since been removed but others may return.

Marion Wellsman, Stort Valley

representative for the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said: "This dog has a lovely nature and somebody must know who she belongs to. She should have been brought in for treatment much sooner."

● THE cat and four kittens left in a box at the Toddbrook Veterinary Surgery, in Harberts Road, Harlow, are now in the care of the Cats Protection League.

Anyone wanting to offer one or more of them a home should contact 0870 2427336.

In last week's report the Star published an incorrect number for the surgery. We apologise for the error.

Town at wrong end of county's recycling league

By JIM TANFIELD

tanfieldj@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RECYCLING levels in Harlow are among the lowest in Essex even though the town has reached its official Government-set target.

According to new figures, Harlow comes 11th out of the county's 12 district and borough councils in Essex with 21.29 per cent of all household waste recycled.

Only Rochford Council fares worse with a figure of 17.18 per cent.

However, a strong performance in Epping Forest, where more than 37 per cent of waste was recycled, placed the district council in second place. It was only pipped to the top slot by Uttlesford where almost 43 per cent of rubbish avoids landfill.

Across the whole of the county, about 36 per cent of all waste was recycled in the 12 months up to March of this year.

The figure for Harlow means the 19.4 per cent target set for the town by the Government for the year was surpassed by 0.89 per cent. The total is up 1.41 per cent on last year.

Eleanor Macy, chairwoman of Harlow Council's environment and community committee, said the figures were very encouraging.

"Overall our figures may be lower than other areas but this is mainly due to composting levels," she said.

"It is hugely important for residents to continue recycling with us to help reduce waste going to landfill and for those who don't to start making it a daily habit.

"Residents can also help by reducing and re-using waste before recycling."

In contrast to the overall recycling rates, Harlow excelled when it came to the performance of its civic amenity site in Temple Bank, which recorded a 64.67 per cent figure for household waste for the 12-month period. It was the fifth most successful of the county's 23 sites.

The centre took more plastics than any other site (71 tonnes), the most cans and scrap metal (1,132 tonnes) and came top of the pile for ceramics (611 tonnes).

County Hall environment chief Peter Martin said: "This is fantastic news. Recycling and reducing waste are key to our waste strategy and how we deal with waste in the future.

"We have recycled more than ever over the past year and this is something that every Essex resident should be very proud of."

Pub ban on brawl pair filmed in punch-up outside nightclub

TWO men involved in a brawl outside a nightclub in the early hours of the morning have been banned from all licensed premises.

Oliver Read (19), of Sycamore Field, Harlow, and Liam Morgan (21), of Spring Hills, Harlow, pleaded guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday to a charge of affray.

Stephanie Farrimond, prosecuting, told the court the defendants had thrown kicks and punches in the fight outside the Liquid nightclub in Harlow town centre on May 13 last year.

The incident, which also involved a number of other people, had been filmed by security cameras and a sequence in which a man's shirt was ripped off was shown to the court.

Miss Farrimond said that after police showed the film to Morgan he described his own behaviour as "awful" and said he was disgusted with himself.

Edward Culver, representing Morgan, said he was genuinely remorseful, while Christopher Whitehouse, appearing for Read, said his client had been so drunk he had no recollection of his actions that evening.

Morgan was given a three-month prison sentence suspended for a year and banned from pubs and clubs for three months. Read was sentenced to four months jail suspended for a year and given a four month ban.

Both men were also ordered to pay £200 costs.

Judge Anthony Goldstaub told them: "You both played a part in a disgraceful episode and your behaviour was totally unacceptable."

Police release stabbing suspects

TWO people arrested in connection with a stabbing in Epping town centre in April have been released without charge.

Essex Police confirmed this week that the 29-year-old man and 30-year-old woman, who have been on bail since the incident, will not be prosecuted.

A spokeswoman said the decision not to bring charges against the pair, both from North Weald, had been taken after consultation with the Crown Prosecution Service.

The 26-year-old victim was stabbed in the back in High Street. He was treated at Princess Alexandra Hospital and made a full recovery.

THE girlfriend of Frank Empson, the young man stabbed to death in the entrance of his Harlow home last year, has spoken publicly for the first time of how she witnessed the fatal attack.

Three months after Steven Pascoe and Jack Harrison were jailed for Frank's manslaughter and attempted robbery, Emily Hawkins (20) said Frank was killed for selling cannabis.

Last September, Emily told the Star how she was struggling to cope with the impact of his death and her determination to see his killers brought to justice.

Now, in an interview with Pick Me Up magazine, she describes how talented basketball player Frank got into selling soft drugs to fund treatment for his father, who suffers multiple sclerosis.

She also reveals her disgust at the sentences handed down to Pascoe and Harrison, both of whom were charged with murder but subsequently cleared.

Emily recalls how Frank learnt about pioneering stem cell treatment in a newspaper but investigations revealed it would cost £13,000. She suggested fundraising but Frank replied: "It would take years to raise that sort of money and Dad doesn't have years."

Believing the idea to have been dismissed, she says she was surprised a few weeks later to see a safe in Frank's room – and then horrified to discover he was using it to store cannabis.

"I'd never heard of something so ridiculous in all my life," said Emily. "I told him he could go to prison. I knew he wasn't a bad person, he was the loveliest, gentlest man I'd ever met and all he wanted to do was help his dad."

People began to call at the Empson house most evenings: "Now I was in on his shady secret, I cringed every time I heard the doorbell," she admits. "When he'd come back, I'd look away as he

'All he wanted to do was to help his dad'

slipped money into the safe."

But one visit changed everything when Pascoe and Harrison came to the house with the intention of stealing the cash.

"After dinner we went upstairs to watch Mickey Blue Eyes on the television," said Emily. "Halfway through the film, there was a knock at the front door. Without saying a word Frank nipped downstairs. 'It's for me, mum,' I heard him shout.

"Then there were men's voices and a strange muffled sound followed by a thud. I ran down the stairs and that's when I saw the two masked men in the hallway. One was punching Frank over and over. 'Get off him', I screamed, launching myself at him. His fist slammed into the side of my head. By the time I could focus, the men were gone.

"Suddenly, Rose (Frank's mother) appeared at the living room door. 'He's cut his neck', she screamed. Frank was coughing so much he couldn't speak but as he lifted his hand from the left side of his neck I saw the gaping wound gushing blood."

Emily said that the next day, after Frank's death was confirmed, she decided to tell police about the drugs. A few days later, Pascoe and Harrison were charged.

She tells the magazine how she and Frank's parents were determined to realise his last wish to help his father and started an appeal. By September 2006, they had raised the £13,000 and Steve flew to Holland for the treatment. Referring to the outcome of the trial, she says: "Frank was stabbed four times in the throat – that was no accident. When I heard the sentences, I couldn't believe it. Wasn't Frank's life worth more?"

"It's still too early to know what effect the stem cell treatment has had on Steven, but hopefully it will help him to walk again and when it does, I know Frank will be smiling down on us."

Council taking steps to move mobile home

DIRECT action is being promised by Epping Forest Council to halt the harm being caused by a mobile home illegally stationed in Roydon. The council believes damage to the Green Belt and appearance of the site is being caused by the structure in the Roydon Chalet Estate. It also believes the caravan poses a flood risk and could encourage similar mobile homes to be placed nearby.

An enforcement notice has not been complied with and efforts to prosecute the owner last year failed because it appears he has moved to Spain. A notice pinned on the property has also been ignored.

A report by council officers states: "It has been established that the mobile home and hardstanding is not acceptable in planning terms."

Councillors on the west area's planning subcommittee last Wednesday decided to refer the matter to another committee with more powers.

After reporting that he found it difficult to move, he was put on a board and fitted with a collar before being flown to Princess Alexandra Hospital for treatment.

TWO burglars who trashed a house and stripped it of all valuables have been jailed after a judge ridiculed their pleas for a community sentence.

Mark Rhead (19), of Collins Meadow, Harlow, and Steven Langton (18), of The Hides, Hars were sent to prison for eight months and six months respectively at Chelmsford Crown Court on Saturday, after admitting burglary. Rhead also admitted two offences of obtaining property by deception.

Lynne Shirley, prosecuting, told the court that on September 12 last year, Rhead and Langton broke into the house in Northbrooks while the occupants were away on holiday.

They stole property worth up to £10,000, including electrical goods, jewellery, clothing and tools, ferrying the items away by taxi.

In stripping out the house they left behind an appalling mess. Litter including food wrappers, beer cans and cigarette ash was left all over the floor and furniture and upstairs there was blood on bedsheets and clothing strewn about.

Miss Shirley said some of the property was later exchanged for money at a pawnbroker and the family had to take out a loan to replace that which could not be recovered.

Marc Cannatella, representing Rhead, blamed his behaviour on problems with drugs and alcohol. Stuart Jessop, for Langton, said his client was naïve and easily led and was sorry for the distress he had caused.

But a suggestion that the burglars should retain their liberty and be punished with community service orders received short shrift from Judge Anthony Goldstaub.

"I would be ashamed to meet the householders in this case if I passed such a sentence on you," he told them. "What would they think? This was a nasty burglary. You took everything that was worth taking and left the premises in a dreadful state."

DEDICATED members of a teaching union have been recognised for their 25 year involvement.

The West Essex branch of the National Association of Schoolmasters/Union of Women Teachers held its annual meeting at Harlow's Gibberd Gardens, off Marsh Lane.

Four teachers were awarded with badges and certificates and two others, Bill Allen who is retiring from Mark Hall and Gillianne Slater of Stewards, also received the Jack Petchey leader award for their services to the town's education.

Airlines seek a passenger compromise

AN attempt to block the full use of Stansted Airport's existing runway has been made – by the airlines themselves.

As the public inquiry into the future of Stansted entered its seventh week, it was the turn of operator BAA's customers – the carriers who pay to fly to and from the airport – to give evidence regarding the expansion plans.

The airlines called for a 30 million passenger compromise between BAA's assertion that the passenger capacity must rise to 35 million a year and the counter claim from Uttlesford District Council and Stop Stansted Expansion that the current cap of 25 million should be maintained.

Last Wednesday, Ian Clayton, who is both Easyjet's regulatory affairs

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

manager and secretary of the Stansted Airlines Consultative Committee, told inspector Alan Boyland: "The ACC supports expansion at Stansted provided it is timely, efficient and subject to consultation and agreement."

"However, it cannot support BAA's application to remove the passenger limit or to increase it to 35 million passengers per annum."

"The ACC proposes a passenger limit of 30 million. This would ensure that capacity would not be constrained while future development could be considered fully and properly."

Cost is at the centre of the airlines' misgivings. Mr Clayton added: "A 30 million limit would protect airlines and passengers from further excessive airport charges and would prevent inefficient capital expenditure, while any future development of Stansted would not be prejudiced by decisions that do not yet need to be made."

The airlines have cast doubt on BAA's forecasts and warned that increasing charges to cover the cost of expansion will drive down demand for air travel – defeating the object of the planning application.

Earlier, on Tuesday, York Aviation's Louise Congdon also gave evidence on behalf of the SACC and cast doubt on the facts and figures at the foundation of BAA's case for expansion.

She told the inquiry: "The ACC considers that BAA's proposals are unsound. BAA has a poor track record in projecting growth requirements at Stansted."

She said the operator had failed to demonstrate there would be sufficient demand to justify its plans and said its projections were unrealistic.

WELCOME TO SCHOOLBAG

This week, STEWARDS got to the art of the matter when the school unveiled a new abstract work; KINGSMOOR PRIMARY pupils were fascinated by wartime tales; ST JAMES' PRIMARY children looked at life on Mars and tried to reach it with their own rockets; POTTER STREET PRIMARY pupils were trying to avoid each other in a dodgeball tournament; and BURNT MILL students were shown how pedal power can be safe and exhilarating.

Memories of war veteran

KINGSMOOR PRIMARY: Tales of wartime bravery were shared with children when a Royal Air Force veteran gave a talk at the school.

Gary Godfrey, who is also one of the Ployters Road school's governors, arrived wearing his uniform and the medals he was awarded while serving in the RAF. He told the children what it was like being evacuated in the Second World War and how it felt fighting in the Korean

War during the early 1950s. Headteacher Bridget Pratt said: "The children were absolutely fascinated about his stories of evacuation.

"It's important for the children to hear these stories firsthand and I think they were really spellbound."

Safety first, then we can have fun

BURNT MILL: Pupils at the First Avenue school had a wheelie good time when special guests arrived for a talk and demonstration.

Representatives from Ride Guide visited to show Years 7 and 8 how to stay safe on their bikes and how a healthy diet can help biking.

Road safety was also discussed and the students' bikes were even given their own MOT by the representatives.

A spokesman for the school said:

"The pupils were also entertained by some thrilling stunts designed to keep them engaged with some of the more serious messages.

"Throughout the entertaining bike acrobatics they were careful to emphasise how important it was

Sculpture's rich with symbolism

STEWARDS: A wall has proved to be right at the art of the Parnall Road school with the unveiling of a sculpture.

Local artist Philip Melling visited the school for a day and worked with students on their sculpture, which is based on the letter 'S' for 'Stewards' and includes circles featuring designs inspired by scientific images and symbols.

They then spent two days visiting Mr Melling's workshop where they were taught how to use metalworking equipment such as gas cutting torches, power tools and the forge.

Mr Melling said: "Each student made an individual piece of the artwork using traditional forging techniques as well as modern processes."

Very fine day for artful dodgers

POTTER STREET

PRIMARY: The school's summer fete was right on target as the sun shone and activities hit the bull's eye.

Alongside the stalls, a highly competitive dodgeball tournament was taking place in which seven other local schools took part.

"The children chose to play dodgeball because it was different and there has never been a primary school festival for this sport in Harlow before," said a spokeswoman. "Everyone taking part had a great day and really enjoyed themselves."

The fete was buzzing, with stalls selling arts and crafts as well as those offering face painting, a barbecue and a tombola.

Rocket day aim to get sky high

ST JAMES' PRIMARY: It was ground control for major fun at the Paringdon Road school when extra-terrestrial exploration was investigated.

During a science workshop, Years 5 and 6 designed and built their own structures which could withstand the atmosphere on Mars.

Various materials including paper tubes, nuts and bolts were used to create the structures

Pupils then designed their own rockets, which were launched hundreds of feet into the air using a high pressure pump. Headteacher Emma-Jane Wilkinson said: "The children really enjoyed a NASA interactive game which allowed them to simulate survival on Mars and had great fun designing their own aliens."

Jail reprieve for man who stole from Jade

A MAN who helped himself to more than £12,500 from the bank account of former Big Brother contestant Jade Goody has narrowly avoided a jail sentence.

Luke Rustem (29) had admitted the theft and was given an eight-month prison sentence, suspended for 18 months, at Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday.

Judge Anthony Goldstaub told him he was ungrateful, dishonest and exploitive.

Unemployed Rustem, of Soper Square, Harlow, was also put on probation to help him overcome drug and gambling problems and was banned from licensed premises for six months.

The court had heard Miss Goody (25) only realised the money was missing when an Abbey National clerk pointed out abnormalities in her transactions.

Catherine Bradshaw, prosecuting, said that Rustem, who was a friend and babysitter for Miss Goody, was found to have written nine cheques to himself from her cheque book between February 2005 and April 2006, totalling £12,565.

The court also heard Rustem had a previous conviction for stealing money from Thomas Cook travel agency when he worked at the firm's Bishop's Stortford office in 2001.

Mark Gatley, mitigating for Rustem, said his client was ashamed of his actions and genuinely remorseful.

"He considered Miss Goody to be his friend and he realises he has betrayed the trust placed in him," he said. "When she didn't notice money going missing from the account, he felt a sense of security and detachment from what he was doing."

Mr Gatley added that Rustem had believed he could eventually pay back the cash through gambling winnings.

"That's what lies at the root of these offences," he claimed. "His gambling was fuelled by his addiction to amphetamines."

Sentencing Rustem, Judge Goldstaub told him: "You have admitted nine counts of theft from Jade Goody. You were a trusted part of the life of her household, as a friend, helper and occasional babysitter."

"You abused that trust and ratted on her friendship by stealing from her. You behaved in an ungrateful, thoroughly dishonest and exploitive way. You will be marked with shame and dishonour."

Museum is a real credit to town

STAFF at The Museum of Harlow celebrated an historic milestone with the award of special accredited status.

The museum, in Muskham Road, collected its certificate from the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council on Friday.

To get the status, it had to demonstrate compliance with nationally agreed standards in the way it cares for its collections and serves the public.

"This is the status every museum in the country works towards, so I'm delighted we've managed to meet the standards required," said manager Chris Lydamore

Contest seeks role models for the young

POSITIVE young role models from Harlow and Epping are being encouraged to enter a new Young Person of the Year contest. There is £3,000 in prizes to be won in this year's 'Yokey' contest, launched throughout Essex this week to show the positive side of young people.

The contest recognises and rewards unsung heroes who put others before themselves, whether caring for someone who may be ill or disabled, helping to run a youth group, raising money for good causes or supporting someone through a difficult time.

Former national newspaper journalist Tony Gearing launched the contest because he was tired of the bad press young people get.

"Everywhere you look nowadays, young people are being condemned," said Mr Gearing. "If you believed everything you read and heard about young people, you could believe every one of them is a binge-drinking, drug-taking, violent hoodie."

"Yet there are many fantastic young people in Harlow and Epping and across Essex doing wonderful things for others."

Nominees must be aged 10-25, can nominate themselves or be put forward by others and should live, work or study in Essex. Mr Gearing is also seeking a business sponsor in the Harlow and Epping area.

For details, visit www.yokey.org online or call 0845 838 2640

UK's biggest dog likes the quiet life

MANY of you will have a pet dog at home and some of you may even have a big one. However, I bet none of you will have one quite as enormous as Samson!

To his owners – Julie and Ray Woods – Samson is just a much-loved pet but the three-year-old Great Dane/Newfoundland cross became a media star last week when people realised just how large he is.

Samson, pictured alongside a doggy friend of more normal size, is almost two metres tall when he stands on his hind legs. He weighs in at almost 127 kilograms, making him officially Britain's biggest dog. Mr and Mrs Woods, who live in and, incredibly, he is still growing!

As a result he has got through several collars which have to be specially made and when it rains he wears a pony coat to keep his back dry!

But although you might expect Samson's size to make him the perfect guard dog, he is in fact a shy and quiet animal. "He's a very placid, laid-back dog," said Mrs Woods. "I don't think he likes being ordered about; he just likes the quiet life."

Lincolnshire, adopted Samson from a local rescue centre when he was just six months old. He was large even then but has continued to get bigger ever since

Get back in the swim for pool reunion

WATER babes who were part of Harlow Swimming Club any time from the 1960s through to the 1990s are invited to a reunion next month.

The event, which is being organised by Kerry and Chris McCarthy, aims to bring together as many former swimmers as

Anyone wishing to join in should call them on 07739 713526 or email kerryspost@hotmail.com – and don't forget to also send interesting memories to Nostalgia too!

Stern regime at the old council

THIS week we have more on Harlow Council engineer and surveyor Bill Webb – plus some other colourful council characters of the 1960s and '70s.

Nostalgia is grateful to reader Ron Bill for his old press cuttings, which reveal that when Mr Webb retired in 1971 he was calling time on a 44-year career in local government.

Starting out in 1934 in a divisional surveyor's office in Brentwood, he was promoted to deputy engineer and surveyor before wartime service as an Air Ministry civil engineer.

In 1946, he joined Epping Rural District Council before moving across to the new Harlow Urban District Council in 1955, where he led major projects including the construction of The Playhouse, Harlow Pool and the crematorium while overseeing the growth of his department from 60 staff to 600.

By

Mr Webb was succeeded in 1971 by his deputy Paul Chester. Northbrooks resident Avron Cooper-Gray worked under both men and recalled: "Mr Webb's secretary was a lady called Mrs Joan Stone who protected him staunchly and you had to work very hard to get to see him. She was very, very strict and was an absolute fanatic about punctuality. I found her quite frightening as a school-leaver.

"I used to take post from our department at Netteswell Hall to the clerk's department and down to the treasurer's department at Netteswell House. I used to enjoy these little walks down the lane.

"The clerk to the council was Mr Doug Bull and his secretary was Miss Kay Jarvis – she was also very strict. The telephonist was a man called Mike who was blind and Mr Jack Cook was the housing officer. My boss when I worked in the cost office was Mr Freddy Crabb and he could be a fearsome man too – you had better not be late!"

Mrs Cooper-Gray also recalls the first female councillor: "Her name was Vi Druce and she was a friend of my parents. I remember thinking as a young girl how important she must be."

Helping to landscape the masterplanner's garden

MANY readers will have enjoyed visiting the Gibberd Garden, in Marsh Lane, Old Harlow, but Moor Tower resident Clive Enders can claim a hand in its beauty.

"I remember many of the families in the local aristocracy – the Swires at Hubbards Hall, the Drakes and Fitzwilliams at Churchgate Street," he writes.

But the biggest name young Enders knew was Harlow masterplanner Frederick Gibberd.

"I remember him and his first wife at their Marsh Farm rambling garden and horribly 'modern' bungalow!" he recalls. "As children, Sir Freddie, as he became, used to get us to do hedging and ditching around his property in reward for lemonade, cakes and sweets. Thus he slowly landscaped the contours and waterways of the terrain into the garden it has evolved into today.

"When I last visited the garden a couple of years ago I met Lady Pat, riding her buggy, and told her of my early gardening experiences there. But she was her usual somewhat curt self and dismissed me with 'That was long before my time!'

Mr Enders also remembered criticism of Sir Frederick's decision to live outside his new town creation: "Many older residents saw it as the Gibberds living in splendid isolation well away from the little boxes he designed for the proletariat."

HOUSING REPAIR SHOCK

HARLOW received a smack in the face from the Government this week - the town is likely to receive only £189,000 of the £10m the council had claimed for housing repairs.

The shock news means more misery for those tenants in places like Brockles Mead and Fernhill, Clarkhill and Honeyhill, where the long-awaited money was destined to be spent.

VANDALS' DODGEMS WITH MILK FLOATS

VANDALS caused nearly £8,000 damage to the Co-operative dairy in Bush Fair in a double attack this week.

During both incidents the electric milk floats parked in the yard were used as bumper cars and at least three were badly damaged.

WELCOME HOME, KEN

A HERO'S welcome was awaiting 19-year-old Kenneth Jones, of Church Leys, when he returned home on Monday after serving with the Task Force in the Falklands.

Kenneth, a weapons engineer, was on board HMS Glamorgan when the ship was struck by an Exocet missile.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

Have any of our correspondents' recollections jogged your memory?

- Do you remember local celebrations for the Falklands victory or, going back further, triumph in the Second World War?
- What was the origin of the Harlow peace dove, dropped from the council's logo earlier this year, and why was it adopted in the first place?

Rodeo-riding Sid

CHIGWELL Row resident Pamela Everett, who recently remembered the noted Harlow equestrienne Joy Sewell in these pages, writes about another character from the world of horses.

"I wonder how many other people remember Sid Wright," she asks. "He lived on Harlow Common and had a skewbald horse. He dressed as a cowboy with a hat, leather chaps, etc, and did rodeo riding shows at local fetes. But he wore his outfit and rode his horse daily, so was a well-known eccentric."

Mrs Everett believes a picture postcard of Mr Wright was once on sale locally. Do you remember him?

Wonderful chaos of an old-style outfitter

RECOLLECTIONS of outfitter Savage and King prompted another customer to get in touch. East Park resident Janet Snell remembers visiting the shop, in Market Street, Old Harlow, in the 1970s and '80s.

"Mr King would always greet us, tape measure around his neck, in a really friendly fashion and would ask what we needed," she said. "He would look at the person and immediately know what size shoes they wanted - he was never wrong. When you entered the shop it was like going back in time. He sold anything from spats to cravats and shirt studs to cufflinks." Mrs Snell also recalled taking her teenage daughter to the shop in 1980. "The fashion at the time was for girls to wear men's caps," she explained.

"Girls being girls, my daughter insisted on trying various styles, but needless to say we left the shop with the cap first suggested by Mr King! "People came from miles around to visit this wonderful chaotic shop and always went home happy."

Signs are good at club for the deaf

A NEW centre for Harlow's deaf community is proving to be a great success.

About 30 people with varying degrees of hearing impairment turned up when Harlow Deaf Association opened the club at the Barn Mead Pavilion, in Partridge Road, for the first time last Saturday.

It is thought there are more than 50 profoundly deaf people living in Harlow and many more with less serious hearing problems.

The new club aims to cater for as many of them as possible, providing a chance for them to socialise, meet new friends and learn new skills.

Harlow Deaf Association also wants to raise awareness of the number of people with hearing problems living in the town and the help available to those who find themselves losing their hearing.

Sign language teacher Emma Somerville, the association's founder and backbone of the club, said: "We want to help alleviate some of those problems and difficulties experienced by the deaf community in and around Harlow and provide a centre for people to go and not be isolated."

"We hope to get more than 50 members. Everyone is welcome but all must be willing to learn sign language or at least make an effort to communicate – everyone will help each other."

At present the centre is self-funding but fundraising events are being planned for the future and the association is also looking for sponsorship.

The next meeting takes place on Saturday at 7pm. The club will be open fortnightly on Saturdays thereafter.

Admission is £1.50 for individuals or £4 per family.

Anyone wishing to find out more about the club and potential sponsors can contact the association c/o 103 Shawbridge, Harlow or by sending an email to harlowdeaf@btinternet.com.

Cadet high-flyers on crest of an (air)wave

TALKATIVE Harlow air cadets were reading each other loud and clear in a high frequency radio competition.

The team of six from 2317 (Harlow) Squadron Air Training Corps proved themselves the pick of the bunch when they beat rival units from across the south east to take first place in the competition at a training camp in Folkestone.

The weekend exercise featured a morning of classroom-based training followed by deployment into the field to set up radio bases. They were then marked on the speed and efficiency with which they set up, as well as the accuracy and knowledge of their operating procedures and map work. Flying Officer Simon Pankhurst, a member of staff at the squadron, said: "It was a great result for our team and really reflected their skills and teamwork. We also had two other cadets seconded to Wickford Squadron's team which came third."

Question time for lung group

MEMBERS of the Harlow and Epping Forest Breathe Easy group got the chance to quiz chest consultant Dr Jonathan Waller at their latest meeting.

The question-and-answer session, which was also attended by Essex County Council chairman Gerald McEwan, was the group's last meeting before a summer break.

Spokesman Tony Carr said: "The audience was stimulated into discussion of a range of topics but without any heated disagreements. "Dr Waller put forward a strong case in both medical and financial terms in favour of large hospitals with all the best expertise and facilities but stressed the need for complementary services to be provided at a local level."

To find out more about the group, call (01992) 573387.

Cancer cash

CHARITY Breast Cancer Care has benefited to the tune of over £1,000 thanks to a strawberry tea party held at Capio Rivers Hospital in Sawbridgeworth.

The event, hosted by the hospital's breast care specialist nurse Oonagh Mead, was attended by 120 members of the breast cancer support group. Attractions included various stalls and refreshments.

PETER Byatt has been appointed president of the Rotary Club of Epping Forest, taking over from Mark Chambers.

Mr Byatt received the chain of office in a ceremony held at Epping Golf Club last Tuesday.

Renewal of Clifton Hatch

Developing YOUR neighbourhood

Last year Harlow Council was successful in its bid for nearly £10m funding from the Department of Communities and Local Government to help renew four neighbourhoods in the town.

Following public consultations last year, this summer we will be starting on the next stage of the development of Clifton Hatch.

Harlow Council and Harlow Renaissance are therefore inviting all residents who live around Clifton Hatch or use its services, to attend an Information Evening to find out more. We'll discuss the outcomes from the last meeting and talk about how we've incorporated local residents' views into the new plans.

The meeting will be held on Monday 30th July from 6.30-8.30pm
at The Royal British Legion Club

HARLOW RENAISSANCE IS WORKING ON BEHALF OF HARLOW COUNCIL TO ENABLE THE DELIVERY OF THE NEIGHBOURHOOD RENEWAL PROJECTS

It's party time for beach girls

BROWNIES and Rainbows in Church Langley got ready for the summer break with a seaside party. But the celebration was tinged with sadness when the girls said farewell to Rainbow leader Valerie Joss, who is moving to Leicester with her clergyman husband the Rev Martin Joss. She was presented with flowers and a card to thank her for four years of service.

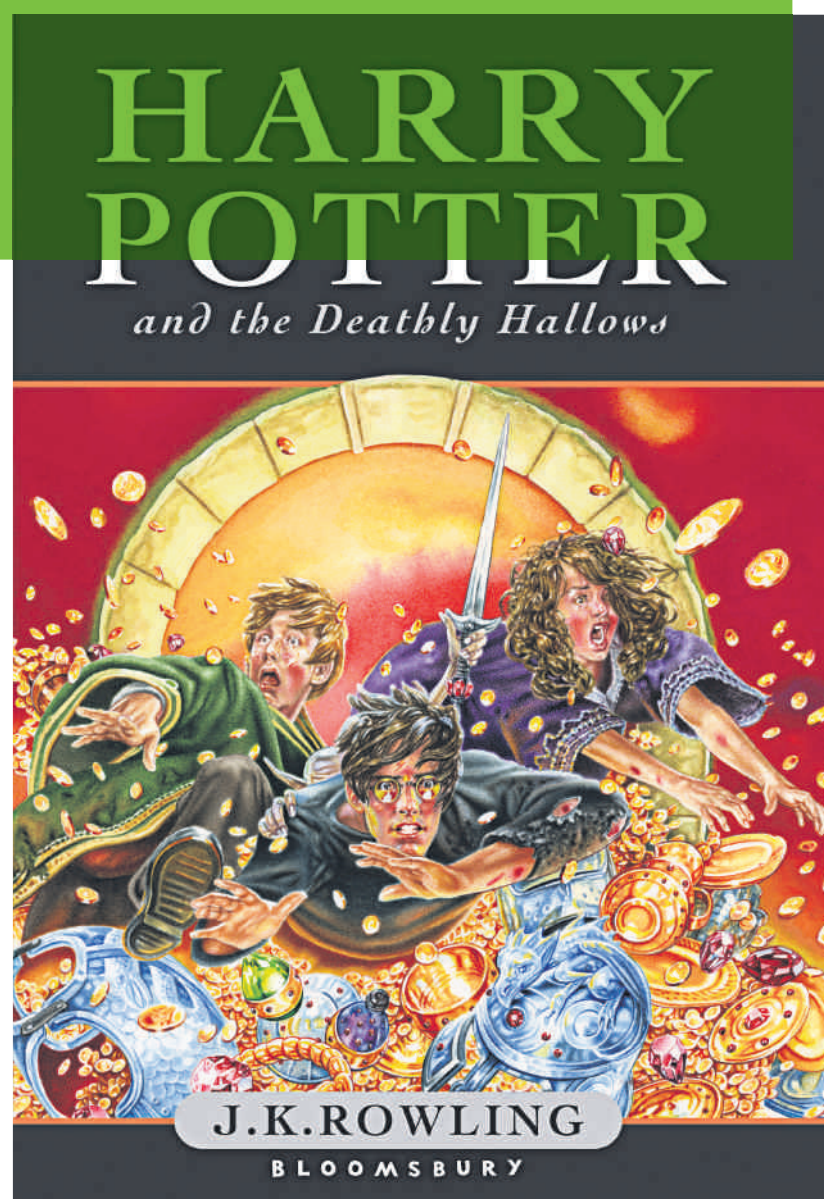

During the evening many of the Brownies received badges, including road safety badges which all of the girls from the 2nd Church Langley group have been working towards this year.

New volunteer staff are now needed to help run the Rainbow and Brownie units. To find out more, call Valerie Murphy on 07831 153857 or email clg@hotmail.co.uk.

Police join fete visitors for Army's special day

IT was sunshine and laughter all the way when Harlow Salvation Army held its summer fete on Saturday.

A bouncy castle, face-painting and French cricket were among the many attractions. Even the police turned up to give a fingerprinting demonstration while members of the Royal British Legion joined in with a performance of line dancing.

The SA's young people's band also played throughout the day and there was a barbecue and and ploughman's lunches for those in need of sustenance.

Organiser Dave Smith said: "It was a fantastic day and the weather held out. I think I need a break before I start on the next one though!"

Final farewell for ITeC

AFTER almost a quarter-of-a-century, a Harlow computer and business administration training provider has closed.

ITeC held a farewell party in its Latton Bush Centre office on Thursday.

The service started in 1983, providing training for school leavers and the unemployed as well as those wanting to further their careers.

Marketing manager Amanda Johnston said: "I think it was a sad but happy occasion and it was a nice opportunity to reflect on the achievements of ITeC. "What made us such a good training provider was the personal touch and there was something for everybody from the school leaver to the general public." The reasons given for the closure were increased competition and funding issues. Pictured are ITeC president John Winterbotham managing director Ann Kennedy and former president Mike Danvers. Back on form with a slice of pure theatre

WHEN written in 1959, Sir Arnold Wesker's portrayal of the meaning of perceived metropolitan ideals in post-war Norfolk was innovative and passionate – so doing it justice in the 21st century was a tough call for an amateur group.

But after several hit-and-miss productions since the death of the group's dramaturge Jack Mitchley two years ago, Moot House Players' integrity and perseverance has finally paid dividends.

REVIEW

ROOTS

Moot House Players, Moot Hall, Harlow

The reassurance came when a glorious set was seen – complete with that quintessential Angry Young Man prop, the kitchen sink.

And, thankfully, the dreadfully awkward tiered seating and dreary fourth wall staging have now been drop-kicked in favour of performance in the round.

But as any schoolboy knows, brilliant sets and imaginative and brave staging count for nothing unless the direction and performances are worthy. Returning to her farm labouring family in Norfolk from the London home she shares with her communist boyfriend Ronnie, Beatie Bryant (Claire Quley) soon gets up their noses.

Spouting Ronnie's philosophical mantras and berating her mother (Biddy McAlpine) for her enjoyment of third-rate music and gossip, it becomes obvious Beatie is out of her depth and deeply unhappy.

Awaiting Ronnie's arrival, the whole Bryant family is gathered around for tea, all disliking him (despite having never met him) due to the effect he has had on his herald Beatie. A letter arrives but no Ronnie, and Beatie's ignominy is complete when the missive states he is dumping her.

Quley shone as the vulnerable yet pious Beatie, her talents being brought to the fore in her closing 'epiphany' when she realises she can think intellectually without Ronnie. David Schacht was perfect and very funny for the allegorical figure of Stan Mann, whose off-stage death signalled the start of modern British thinking, even in Norfolk – well, some parts of it.

McAlpine and Geoff Leeds as the parents and Ian Beckett as the brother Frankie also gave sterling performances – simple but effective in portraying a bucolic mentality being disturbed by Beatie's city thinking.

The entire cast and director Tony Edwards deserve recognition for the evident hard work they put into bringing pure theatre back to their audience. Norfolk may be flat, but this certainly wasn't!

Ten years of exemplary conduct

A FANFARE of appreciation was heard on Monday when Harlow Chorus members raised their voices and glasses to toast an inspiring musical director.

Following a final concert of Brahms' Requiem at the Thaxted Music Festival on Sunday, Sarah Tenant-Flowers put down her baton after 10 years as the choir's musical director.

Travelling down from her Oxford home to take rehearsals, Mrs Tenant-Flowers has directed the choir in locations such as Cape Town, South Africa and King's College Chapel, Cambridge.

She is leaving to concentrate on her professional duties with her choir Singscape.

Harlow Chorus administrator Val Brockbank said: "Sarah was absolutely brilliant at what she did and the way she went about it was very inspiring.

"She smiled at you and you smiled back and that made you sing that little bit better. We have utterly valued and will miss her company and professional attitude."

Robbin' laughs from a mythic figure

ON a beautiful and warm summer's evening, the sound of laughter echoed across the gardens of Copped Hall mansion as Pals retold the famous legend of Robin Hood in a most amusing burlesque fashion.

Based on the well-known version of the famous outlaw, four of the company's actors (Alan Parker, Laura Clark, Kate Corrie and March Cavy) took the roles of some 10 characters ranging from King Richard to Robin, the Sheriff of Nottingham, Little John and Will Scarlett.

Robin in this production was named Robin Wrinkle Bottom and the other characters were given similarly naughty pseudonyms – even Maid Marion was not spared. The cast did well to cope with so many costume changes which were often so rushed the headgear became dislodged, much to the delight of the children in the audience.

In fact, audience participation, as in traditional pantomime, was an important part of the play and helped to make it a thoroughly enjoyable occasion.

The company is based in the Leicester area and specialises in re-enacting histories, myths and legends – it is hoped they will return to Copped Hall soon.

Travolta looks so Divine for '50s musical

HAIRSPRAY
certificate PG, running time 1h56m

JUST the thought of John Travolta in a female fat suit and beehive hairdo replacing transvestite Divine's character for this musical remake should have you retching.

But strange as it may be, they've decided to remake the kitsch and colourful John Waters' 1988 production with the scientist-cum-pilot-cum-bad script specialist Travolta. Overweight teenager Tracy Turnblad (Nikki Blonsky) is obsessed with the Corny Collins Show and runs home to watch it with her best friend Penny (Amanda Bynes) and drool over Link Larkin (Zac Efron) to the dismay of Tracy's mum Edna (Travolta, pictured below).

After one of the stars of the show leaves, Corny Collins (Jason Marsden) holds auditions to see who will replace them.

With the help of her friend Seaweed (Elijah Kelly), Tracy makes it onto the show, angering the evil dance queen Amber Von Tussle (Brittany Snow) and her mother Velma (Michelle Pfeiffer).

Tracy then decides that it's not fair that black people can only dance on the show once a month and with the help of Seaweed, Link, Penny, Motormouth Maybelle (Queen Latifah), her father (Christopher Walken) and Edna, she vows to take steps to make sure the Corny Collins show becomes integrated. Camp fun all around.

The clash of metal

TURNING a Japanese puzzle toy into a summer blockbuster sounds as unlikely as turning a lorry into a robot saviour – but it's happened nonetheless!

Director Michael Bay is well versed in action and gives a bombastic grandeur to this live action successor to the toys, cartoons and animated film.

Somehow the American executive producers, Steven Spielberg included, have managed to squeeze in "mild sexual references and humour" and "intense sci-fi battle scenes", making it a moral dilemma for parents whether to take their young children to a film inspired by toys! Optimus Prime (voiced by Peter Cullen) narrates the story of how a mysterious cube known as Allspark, which creates life wherever it lands, triggered a war between alien robots on Earth.

One of the villains, or Decepticons, Blackout, destroys a US military base in Qatar and downloads some major secrets. It releases Scorponok – a scorpion-themed Decepticon – and starts hunting down and attacking survivors before fleeing on the heels of an air strike. US Defense Secretary Keller (Jon Voight) soon realises what's hit the fan and begins to fear the future.

Meanwhile, in Los Angeles Sam Witwicky (Shia Lebouef) has got $4,000 to buy a car and when a strange yellow model emits a pulse that shatters the windscreens of every other car on the lot, he buys it.

The car is actually the friendly robot Autobot Bumblebee which can only communicate via the car radio and helps Sam pull Mikaela Banes (Megan Fox).

Meteors bring more Decepticons to Earth, setting the stage for an epic showdown with Optimus and his good guys.

Forget the shoddy script and flaky acting – giant battling robots is what cinema should be all about in the summer, so bring it on!

WE'LL LIVE AND DIE IN THESE TOWNS
The Enemy (album, Warner)

Like a perfect holiday sunset, there are some moments which work instantly but will nonetheless last forever – welcome, then, this three-piece Coventry outfit. Considering this is a debut album, it's quite simply astonishing and grabs from the off with the neo-punk Aggro. The refined and beautifully produced yet raw sound has been cherry-picked from the very best of '70s and '80s punk/mod in The Clash and The Jam; this influence being strongly evident in their That's Entertainment homage title track. Blistering bass pumps throughout with spangly guitars and powerful vocal hooks. The symbiosis of talent is staggering.

FANCY FOOTWORK
Chromeo (album, Back Yard)

Skating a fine line between genuinely witty, tongue-firmly-in-cheek '80s kitsch and plain irritating synth-pop nonsense, Chromeo's difficult second album of tired jokes and dated beats ultimately grates. Those with a sense of humour will initially chuckle at the retro grooves and alpha male posturing of Tenderoni, but by the time My Girl Is Calling Me A Liar limps out of the speakers, the joke begins to wear a little thin. Shamelessly plundering the vaults for absurd '80s electro-funk synth lines and trite lyrics, this is a record destined to exclusively appeal to 'ironic' student discoheads.

SATURDAY WAITS
Loney, Dear (single, Regal)

According to a national broadsheet, this music is "as lovely as nodding off in a deckchair". I once fell asleep in such circumstances only to be woken up when the chair collapsed, catching my tie and almost strangling me to death. Listening to this bland lift music from Swedish multi-instrumentalist Emil Svanangen is only slightly less irritating.

THE QUEEN ALONE
Carla Thomas (album, Universal)

An expanded reissue of the Queen of Memphis Soul's 1967 solo effort, The Queen Alone finds Thomas in a soulful, seductive mood. Down-tempo and somewhat genteel in places, it's a work of restrained beauty, with Thomas shunning bombastic diva

HARRY POTTER AND THE ORDER OF THE PHOENIX. Teen wizard Harry Potter is due to start his fifth year at Hogwarts and, like his muggle counterparts, that means exam time. He's desperate to get back to school to find out why his friends Ron and Hermione have been so secretive all summer. When a malicious Ministry of Magic employee, Dolores Umbridge (Imelda Staunton), takes the Defence Against the Dark Arts lecturer position, she uses it to usurp power away from headmaster Albus Dumbledore (Michael Gambon). Harry engages in a personal battle with her while dreaming of a strange door at the end of a corridor which hides something his parents' murderer Voldemort wants desperately.

DIE HARD 4.0. John McClane has to collect hacker Farrell for questioning by the FBI. Farrell has unwittingly helped a team of cyber-terrorists with the software they needed to bring the US economy to its knees. In the background is McClane's daughter Lucy who wants nothing to do with her 'loser' of a dad. The stakes are raised when McClane discovers hackers have been dying through explosions on their computers detonated by villain Thomas Gabriel.

SHREK THE THIRD. Shrek and Fiona are performing regal duties in Far, Far Away as King Harold lies dying. He tells unwilling regent Shrek of a possible alternative heir – the unwilling Arthur. Desperate to return with the pregnant Fiona to his swamp, Shrek sets off on another mission with Donkey and Puss In Boots to bring Arthur back. Scheming Prince Charming, however, has other plans.

BARNYARD. With the most basic of schoolboy errors (that boy and girl cows all have udders) this animation tells the uninspiring story of Otis – a male cow with udders – and his fight to control his stupid friends.

TMNT. After going their separate ways, the mutant ninja turtles Donatello, Raphael, Leonardo and Michelangelo are reunited to take on the nefarious industrialist Max Winters.

Life and art in the daze of absinthe

MOULIN ROUGE
(Network, PG, retail)

John Huston's sumptuous Technicolor recreation of the gaudy fin de siècle Parisian nightspot of the title and the lively Montmartre district around it provides a vivid backdrop for this 1952 biopic of hard-drinking artist Henri Toulouse-Lautrec.

It's a testament to the power of the rousing, energetic riot of colour in the opening dance sequence and the often striking visuals which follow that the film overall works as well as it does, given some of the obstacles in its way.

Casting tall Jose Ferrer as the short crippled artist whose legs never grew past childhood was an odd, sometimes distracting choice since we've all been overexposed to comedians playing the role for laughs by shuffling around on their knees in a long coat. Ferrer designed his own leg braces to allow him to briefly walk around on his knees for some scenes, but the different kinds of camera trickery utilised elsewhere do unfortunately draw attention to themselves and away from a solid performance as the actor variously hobbles behind a prop only for a differently proportioned short stand-in to emerge on the other side, stands in hole or, least convincing of all, is shown sitting with clearly fake legs dangling from his waist.

It doesn't help, either, that the famed Jane Avril is played by the extremely limited, grating Zsa Zsa Gabor and, consequently, gets far too much screen time.

But never mind, because there are a lot of good performances elsewhere to make Moulin Rouge spin, particularly Colette Marchand as self-destructive prostitute Marie Charlet, whom Toulouse-Lautrec loves but cannot salvage, and Ferrer's secondary turn as the artist's father, not to mention a wealth of well-sketched minor characters (including a blink-and-you'll-miss-it uncredited role for a pre-stardom Christopher Lee as artist Georges Seurat and his subsequent Hammer collaborator Peter Cushing as an aristocrat).

THE THIRST
(Starz Home Entertainment, 18, retail)

Most films that rip off other, better films in the guise of homage are a real drag but once in a while one comes along that's so much fun you just have to forgive its sins.

Vampire romp The Thirst often blatantly thieves from Near Dark while pilfering some of its theme from Requiem For A Dream, but it does it with such bloody gusto that it's impossible to not like it.

Maxx (Matt Keeslar) is gutted when he finds his terminally ill stripper girlfriend Lisa (Clare Kramer) dead in the bathtub with her wrists open but he's even more staggered when he pulls himself out of his depressive funk weeks later and bumps into her in a nightclub.

It emerges she's been turned by a Manson-esque group of vampires, a bunch of blood-crazed killers he can join as a comrade or as an entrée ... but once he gets a taste for the red stuff, it looks like there's no stopping him.

Director Jeremy Kasten has a lot of fun showing the gritty reality of undead withdrawal as his fanged lovers go cold turkey (the pair of them chasing their cat around a small flat with a frying pan comes close to the hysterical derangement of TV's Bottom) and clearly knows how to feed his audience with a diet of random nudity and geysers of blood.

There's a commentary, a couple of fun features and deleted scenes, but the real meat's in the movie.

Star rating: ★★★

POPCORN
(Spark Pictures, 15, retail)

This largely atrocious, dreary and smug British 'comedy' starring soap stars Jack Ryder (Eastenders) and Jodi Albert (Hollyoaks) concerns a lovelorn movie nerd who gets a job at his local multiplex in order to pull an usherette who happens to resemble a Manga character with whom he's obsessed.

Deciding to take all his tips for success from the movies, he sets about a number of tedious schemes to find Miss Right (or, least, Miss Right Now), which is the cue for director Darren Paul Fisher to bore his audience silly with an endless stream of film trivia and jokes so embarrassingly trite that you'd be wincing if you weren't busy shouting for a refund.

Star rating: ★

LABYRINTH OF PASSION
(Tartan Video, 18, retail)

Spanish enfant terrible Pedro Almodóvar's second film is a mad, farcical cocktail of sexual degeneracy, cartoon punks, drug addicts and would-be revolutionaries, shaken frenziedly and poured out into the implausible storytelling conventions of a daytime TV soap opera.

The plot's far too convoluted to relate here, although it's indication enough that it features a nymphomaniac pop star called Sexilia whose gynaecologist father is giving fertility treatment to the wife of an Arab prince, while the bisexual son of the latter is living in Madrid incognito, although a would-be terrorist (Antonio Banderas, looking about 16) is on his trail. Meanwhile ... well, you get the idea.

All these various characters and others ricochet off each other in Almodóvar's characteristic freewheeling style until something like a narrative emerges, but that's really secondary to the director's ambition of having a fun in the unlikely hyper-reality he's created.

Star rating: ★★★

OLIVIER, OLIVIER
(Bluebell Films, 15, retail)

There's a strong flavour of The Return Of Martin Guerre to this enigmatic drama inspired by a newspaper story.

Serving equally well as a mystery and an examination of broken relationships, it's the story of a family in rural France which implodes in the aftermath of the disappearance of beloved son Olivier.

But years later, the detective who originally worked on the case encounters a Parisian rent boy (the excellent Gregoire Colin) whom he is convinced is Olivier. Returning to the mother who doted on her lost son, this teenage stranger is welcomed as him – although the missing boy's sister Nadine comes to believe the new arrival is not who he appears to be.

It's a power and absorbing piece of ensemble acting, even if Polish director Agnieszka Holland casually drops in a late sequence showcasing Nadine's evident psychokinetic abilities only to frustratingly make nothing more of it.

Star rating: ★★★★★

★★★★★ unmissable ★★★★ very good ★★★ good ★★ fair ★ don't bother

and Chris Moss

warbles for calculated vocal poise against lush strings and angelic backing singers. Opening with the bittersweet melancholy of Burt Bacharach's Any Day Now and taking in the fragility of All I See Is You, it's an album of graceful ballads of a maturity belying her youth at the time of recording.

GET IN LINE
The Runners (single, Weekender)

Like a sauvignon blanc, this has crisp, clean lines and a whoosh of summer with a hint of Dexy's Midnight Runners. The soundtrack of suburban sausage burning and, like a fine white, too much is never quite enough – vintage stuff.

HOLD ON
The Sonic Hearts (single, Chrysalis)

Billed as “uplifting indie-folk-pop pie”, a more objective analysis of this debut single from the Scouse quintet might deem it “uninspiring and inconsequential Kooks-lite”. It is, however, available as a limited edition 7in blue vinyl, so could prove more interesting as a decoration than a soundtrack.

First class food in a friendly atmosphere

THE New Inn in Roydon is the perfect place to visit if you're looking for a good pub with first class food and drink, with a friendly atmosphere.

Located in Roydon High Street, in the heart of this picturesque Essex village, it has been run by landlady Mary Snell for the past 15 years.

There is always a warm welcome, whether you're a regular or just calling in for the first time. It always has a superb ambience and is well known as a first rate country pub for all the family.

With a large beer garden, which smokers can enjoy, as well as an adventure playground for the children, you can be sure that the whole family will enjoy a visit here. The New Inn is open all day on Saturdays and Sundays throughout the summer.

Food is served lunchtime and in the evening and is typical English fare - excellent value too, with generous portions and plenty to choose from, so that everyone is happy!

There is also a separate dining room, which is available for private hire. This venue would be perfect for events such as private parties, conferences etc.

Pole-axed

Club lodge appeal as relegation looms

THE combination of injury and unavailability has certainly cost Harlow Athletic Club's men's team dear this season.

And the side desperately need to accrue enough points from their last Southern League meeting of the season at Peterborough next month to avoid relegation from division three north.

Meanwhile, the Mark Hall based club have lodged an appeal over a decision which prevented them competing in the pole vault at a meeting at Bedford last month — and cost them several vital points.

That decision by an official at the Bedford International Stadium could be the difference between relegation and safety.

Harlow have spoken to an international standard referee and believe the Bedford official did not act within the laws of the sport.

Harlow AC chairman Chris Clark told Star Sport yesterday (Wednesday): "We have lodged an appeal. A stadium pole could have been used. They refused to give us a pole vault.

"We could have got two or three points in that event. We had pole vaulters who would have beaten the guys there."

Harlow's luckless campaign continued at Gloucester Park, Basildon, on Saturday when the club were forced to withdraw Glenn Paxman due to a groin injury, while Craig Nixon was also missing.

Already without other key athletes through injury, the team suffered delays on the M25 motorway and only arrived moments before the start of the meeting.

Despite this they still managed to finish third in the four-team event, faring particularly well in the field events.

The team of seven excelled in both the high jump and long jump competitions. Phil Lidgley (1.70m) and Lloyd Ellis (1.55m) were respectively first in the high jump A and B string events, while Carl Paxman (5.68m) and Ellis (5.37m) won the long jump A and B strings respectively.

In the javelin, Paxman claimed a second in the A string event (41.60m), while Lidgley did likewise in the B string (33.25m).

Veteran Dave Bauer performed creditably, claiming two second spots in the A hammer — a new personal best throw of 35.05m — and A shot (10.32m). He came up against a strong opponent in Colchester's Rob Earle, who won both events comfortably.

The most notable performances in the track events came from Paxman and Ellis. Paxman came second in the 400m A string (54.9s), while Ellis claimed a second spot in the 400m hurdles A string (63.9s).

In the B discus, Clark recorded his longest throw for 15 years for second with 25.21m.

Harlow scored 80 points. Basildon won the meeting with Colchester Harriers second and Southend-on-Sea in last.

Harlow hope to have GB recruit Andrew Osagie available for the final league meeting at Peterborough on August 4.

"We know if we don't get a strong result in the last match we will be staring relegation in the face," added Clark. Results: Lloyd Ellis — 4th A 100m 12.7s; 1st B triple jump 11.39m. Phil Lidgley — 3rd B 100m 12.4s; 2nd A triple jump 12.18m. Carl Paxman — 3rd A 200m 25.3s; 1st A long jump 5.68m. Ben Davey — 4th A 800m 2:20.3; 4th A 1,500m 4:37.1. Paul Avontuur — 2nd B shot put 9.40m.

BOWLED OVER: Lee Waterman is celebrating his silver medal in the United World Games in Austria

Lee seals silver at World Games

LEE Waterman just missed out on the gold medal when he came second in the ten pin bowling singles championship at the United World Games in Vienna, Austria.

The 15-year-old Burnt Mill School student was among more than 20 15- to 18-year-olds who competed in the singles section. These were whittled down to four.

Lee qualified in first place after bowling seven strikes in a row in his first game and finishing with an impressive 278.

He did not have to play until two other knockout matches were completed.

The winner of fourth faced the third ranked bowler and then the winner took on the number two placed bowler. Matt Forsyth beat England colleague Andrew Sykes and then defeated number two Benjamin Kubalek, before overcoming the Harlow schoolboy 170-158 in the final.

Trevor Waterman, Lee's father, said: "We are so pleased for Lee. But there were a few tears when he lost the final.

"It could be a good thing as he knows what he has to do. It was a big learning curve for Lee."

The singles event started with bowlers carrying over scores from the team event which had been held over a two-day period.

The youngster, from Canons Brook, representing Great Britain, started the singles event in fifth after playing well in the team event.

His scores included a 599 and 622. The GB team came seventh out of 20.

Sawbridgeworth march on

RYAN Cunningham produced his best ever bowling figures for Sawbridgeworth as Danny Wilson's side beat hosts Stevenage by 84 runs in the Sommers UK Home Counties Premier Cricket League division two east.

He took 7-49 from 20.1 overs on a turning wicket.

This was after Sawbridgeworth had made 202-6 in their 60 overs.

Cunningham got an early breakthrough, dismissing Gary Brown (11), who was caught by teenager Joe Rudkin.

Tanweer Sikandar and Zubair Afzal added 28 as the hosts reached 65-1 in the 19th over. It became 65-3 at the end of the 20th as Afzal was bowled by Cunningham for 11 before Naseer Ahmed (0) was brilliantly run out by Wilson.

Wilson took the new ball and wickets continued to tumble. A superb return catch by Cunningham removed Sikandar for 48, before Andrew Richardson trapped Ashley Bayes lbw for one.

Saeed Ali Kazmi was then bowled by Cunningham for 4 to leave Stevenage on 78-6. Laurie Brown (8) and skipper Dave Carr (14) stayed until after tea. Then Cunningham switched ends and struck with the first ball of his new spell, trapping Brown lbw.

A juggling slip catch by Wilson saw Syed Ali Raza become Cunningham's sixth victim, while Paul James dismissed Carr lbw.

Graeme Duff was the last man out, playing on to Cunningham.

Earlier, Sawbridgeworth were put in by Carr and were given a brilliant start by Wilson (38) and Steve Ashman (36) who raced to 50.

Their opening stand reached 81 before the loss of four wickets for 10 runs left them struggling on 91-4.

They were rescued by Rudkin and Richardson (39), who added 73 for the fifth wicket.

Teenager Rudkin, returning to the side in the absence of Rory Coutts, showed real application by reaching his 50 off 132 balls.

Dropped on 17, he took full advantage as he guided Sawbo to a match-winning total.

Wilson added: "The wicket broke up a bit and Ryan is metronomic when he gets into a rhythm. He made life really uncomfortable for the batsmen."

Five medals for karate kids at regional championships

FIVE medals were earned by Hanko-Ryu Harlow members in the Midlands Regional Open Championships in Birmingham.

In the boys 10/11 years kata section James Davies (10) claimed gold with Sean Perry (11) taking the bronze.

Alex Scott (14) worked hard in the boys 14/15 years kata category for a well-deserved bronze.

Reece Taylor (18), the current European Kata Champion, took gold in the senior kata section.

Jack Perry (13) reached the final of the boys 12/13 years kumite section after two rounds and eventually gained a silver medal for his efforts.

Sensei Nariman Jeddi, chief instructor and founder of Hanko-Ryu, said: "This is a fantastic result; 5 medals from 7 competitors.

"I am very pleased with the whole squad and that their efforts and training are paying off."

This was the first competition in England to use a new ranking system which has been introduced.

GB cox helps team to 4th

HARLOW'S Acer Nethercott performed well for Great Britain at the weekend's third and final World Cup race in Lucerne, Switzerland.

In the Siemens-backed men's eight event, which former Mark Hall School student Nethercott coxed, there was a last-minute substitution in the boat which meant that Simon Fieldhouse raced in place of Tom Lucy, who fell ill.

The team still managed to finish fourth.

With this fourth position and a bronze medal from the second World Cup event in Amsterdam last month, the eight will no doubt go into the World Championships in August with increased confidence.

This, combined with other results, contributed to Britain winning the coveted World Cup trophy for the first time in 10 years, defeating habitual winners Germany.

The trophy is awarded to the country which has the most points at the end of the World Cup series.

Final selections for the Great Britain squad for the World Championships will be announced today (Thursday).

Jessop Jacks up Hawks bid

AN excellent 20-point haul from Paul Jessop helped Harlow Hawks to a 78-56 victory over Welwyn Jacks in the Summer Basketball League.

Hawks now need to win their return game against Team Select to put extra pressure on Ware Rebels for the last game of the league at the end of the month.

Other scorers: Sharma (11pts), Freeman (10), Spashett (9), S. Niaz (8), Z. Niaz (8), Jones (4), Nguyen (4), Ramadan (2), McBride (2).

Passmores secure Trophy win

King Harold 110-3, Passmores 111-3

Passmores won by 7 wickets (Stort Trophy Final)

PASSMORES School won the Stort Trophy competition for the fifth time in its 11-year history when they beat King Harold School (Waltham Abbey) in the final.

The competition started in 1997 and the trophy is named after Stort Cricket Club (now known as Harlow Town), which organises and hosts the annual event.

Thursday's 16-over match at Ash Tree Field saw Passmores overhaul King Harold's score of 110-3 with eight balls to spare.

The Harlow school owed much to an opening partnership of 70 between

Mark Waters (40) and Jack Mappley (28), plus 40 extras. Earlier, Adam Lord had played well to make 37 in King Harold's innings, which also saw 46 extras.

The high number of extras can be partly explained by the rules of the competition for wides. Two runs were awarded and no extra ball bowled for each wide apart from the last over of each innings.

Then it reverted to the traditional law where one run and an extra ball were awarded.

In the semi-final, King Harold posted an impressive 125-3, to beat the holders Mark Hall (96) by 29 runs, while Passmores (124-1) had defeated Stewards (75) by 49 runs in the last four.

These matches had been preceded by group matches involving eight teams with the top two from each qualifying for the semi-finals.

Mark Hall topped one group, while Stewards led the other going into the semis.

Other schools competing in the tournament were Burnt Mill, St John's (Epping), St Mark's and John Warner (Hoddesdon).

Harlow Town wish to thank event sponsors GDM (UK) Ltd and umpired Gordon Mascall and David Waller.

Harlow top Bill to ease drop fears

STYLISH: Waqas Akhtar drives a delivery through the offside in Saturday's victory over Billericay

JAMES Butler's side had a slow start to their league campaign but two wins on the trot have eased fears of a relegation dogfight.

Harlow are seventh and more encouragingly Saturday's victory over lowly Billericay owed much to two talented youngsters Waqas Akhtar (69) and Lee Heskett (5-22).

Butler won the toss and chose to bat first.

The hosts' top order struggled. Opener Darren Green fell early to the medium pace of Danny Pryke and Nick Butler looked good before playing on to Stuart Hynes for 25.

Harlow 207-8d, Billericay 136
Harlow won by 71 runs (Shepherd Neame Essex League, division two)

Akhtar, who came in at three, fought with determination against good bowling in difficult conditions.

However, wickets fell at the other end with Nilesh Odedra, Iain Nuttall, the out-of-form Mark Green and Simon Baulcomb all failing to make an impression as Harlow slid to 86-6.

James Butler's arrival brought a change in fortunes as he hit three consecutive boundaries off Pryke and a towering six off Hynes.

The Harlow skipper and Akhtar put on 100 in 13 overs before the latter was dismissed for a mature 69, while Butler fell to the part-time spin of Billericay captain Paul Southgate for 40.

Some late runs gave Harlow a score of 200+ for the first time this season as they declared on 207-8.

In reply, Mike Smith and Southgate put on 38, before the former was trapped lbw by Green. Southgate then fell to Brad Winger.

First change bowler Heskett then took control. He bowled beautifully, seaming and swinging the ball for a well deserved five-wicket haul.

He was aided by outstanding fielding by Winger at long leg and also by wicket-keeper and captain James Butler, who took one smart catch down the leg side.

Only Pryke's huge blows and a cultured innings from David Cole (35) held up Harlow's progress.

With two more wickets to take, the Harlow skipper reintroduced Winger and got out the defiant Pryke and then the number 11 in two balls to secure the win.

Butler added: "I'm really pleased. We did the basics well and the bowlers were outstanding.

"A special mention must go to Luke Heskett. He has only played six games this season, but he has two five-wicket hauls and has made several other valuable contributions with the bat as well."

Batting collapse costs Epping

A LACK of runs cost Epping as their miserable Shepherd Neame Essex League division three season continued in a six-wicket loss against Old Southendians at Lower Bury Lane.

Having won the toss the hosts decided to bat first on a good track on Saturday.

Dan Taylor and Dan Majeed opened up the innings, but it was not long before Old Southendians got picked up their first scalp.

Taylor was dismissed lbw for two by Souths' impressive bowler Oz Jordon.

Majeed (21) was stumped off the bowling of M. Gridley, who finished with 6-34.

This wicket sparked a collapse as Epping were reduced to 61-5.

Dan Sibley batted through to get 82. This sparkling knock included an astonishing six sixes.

Epping's tally of 189 did not look enough — and so it proved.

The visiting batsmen got off to a good start thanks to Sawyer (46) and Lucas (28).

A couple of wickets fell, but the Southland boys got home with 16 overs to spare.

Town loving life down on the Farn

HARLOW Town share top spot with Bengoe in division four of the Ten-17 FM Herts & Essex Cricket League after they thrashed hosts Farnham seconds by 83 runs.

The visitors lost the toss and were put in to bat.

Ron Yates and Scott Alderson put on 64 for Town's first wicket but the visitors were in danger of squandering the small boundaries and a flat pitch, slipping to 160-7.

However, an explosive knock from Karl Seecharan (54) plus good support from Marc Lowers ensured Town eventually reached 225-8 from their 45 overs.

In reply, Farnham lost early wickets.

Resistance came from Tom Prowse who made 35, but they were bowled out for 143.

In the same division, Potter Street (110-4) overcame Hockerill (109) away by six wickets.

Charlie Coleman (34 not out and three wickets) starred with bat and ball as Harlow Town seconds (173-9, Paul Calver 48) beat Matching Green (127) by 46 runs in division six. Antony Gardiner (4-21) also bowled well for Town.

Felsted's fastest

RICK Ricketts was the fastest Harlow Running Club member to complete the Felsted 10K race.

The Veteran 40 runner sprinted home in 26th place in a time of 37 mins 35 secs.

He was followed by Roy Steven (V50 30th, 37.50) and Steve Mackenzie (41st, 39.13).

Jennifer Spelling was the fastest Harlow woman, clocking 46.11 for 142nd.

Other results: John Tennant 39:19; Jamie Luck (60th, 40:33); Colin Moody (86th, 42:56); David Ayling (104th, 43:48); Graham Pugh (109th, 44:07); Jon Steadman (130th, 45:12); Grahame Thomas (133rd, 45:18); Matthew Jones (152nd, 46:28); Dionne Jones (160th, 46:52); Graham Saville (162nd, 47:07); Karen Moir (253rd, 52:39); Ron Luck (301st, 55:46); John Smith (384th, 1:13:49).

All-England Championships duo in Sky TV debut

TWO rising stars of Harlow athletics overcame the disappointment of a disqualification to help Essex clinch the gold medal in front of SKY TV cameras at the All England Schools Championships.

Mark Hunt (16), from Passmores School, and Mark Hall School's Aidan Lee (15) both represented Essex.

Having been banned from the 4x100m relay final on Friday after claims that Aidan had thrown the baton to the ground, the team was reinstated and finished an excellent fourth in the final in 43.36 seconds.

Both boys played a major part in ensuring the county accrued enough points to secure the overall trophy.

On Friday morning in driving rain Aidan was 3rd in his first round for the inter boys 200m in 22.75s, which qualified him for the semi-final the next day.

At lunchtime the same day in better conditions Mark was 3rd in his first round for the inter boys 400m in 50.10s, which qualified him for the semis.

Later that afternoon the two boys ran in the inter boys 4x100m relay along with James McLean and Emmanuel Okpokori. The team came second in the first round in 43.32s, but officials disqualified Essex after claims Aidan threw the baton to the ground.

However, video evidence proved Aidan's innocence and Essex were reinstated.

There was no such luck in the boys' individual events where Mark ran 50.51s in his semi-final, coming 4th and Aidan was 6th in his 200m semi heat (22.92s).

Hawks boss' striker SOS

RYAN Kirby's most pressing items in his summer shopping list for Harlow Town are two new strikers.

This requirement comes after the news of Sammy Winston's departure to join Leyton, and follows Marc Salmon's retirement in the summer.

With Craig Charles due to go in for an exploratory knee operation next week, it leaves the Hawks player-manager desperately short of forward options, with just James Bunn and Dean Williams available.

Kirby said: "We are looking for a striker if not two. We have to keep an eye out and we may have to wait a week or two for people who do not get in at other clubs.

"Sammy had been good for us and he received a very good offer. We have always said we would not stand in his way."

Winston will face his old team-mates straight away as Harlow Town begin their new Ryman premier division life at Leyton (Saturday August 18).

Harlow's pre-season campaign starts with a game at Tiptree United this Saturday and Kirby has been most impressed by central mid-field triallists Jordan Fowler and Alfie Hayes.

Fowler is a combative player who is not afraid to get stuck in and can pass well, but he could not hold down a regular first-team spot at Bishop's Stortford last season while Hayes has been with Dagenham & Redbridge.

Kirby said: "Jordan has looked good in training and you can see Alfie has played with better players."

Defender Beckett Hollenbach, right wing-back Mark Taylor, midfielder Kenny Davis, keeper James Hasell and centre-half Danny Chapman have all resigned for the club after helping the Hawks to promotion from division one north last season.

After Tiptree, the Hawks entertain Blue Square Premier (formerly Conference) clubs Grays Athletic and Stevenage Borough on Tuesday and Thursday respectively.

The Hawks player-boss feels his side's two opening premier division games will give a good idea of what his team will be up against.

After Leyton, Harlow host Heybridge Swifts in an Essex derby on Tuesday August 21.

"They have both been in the division for a number of years and finished mid-table last year," he said.

Kirby feels that Chelmsford City and AFC Wimbledon are two sides who will be challenging for the title and added: "Chelmsford have a good following and money. It's a pity we are playing AFC Wimbledon on a Tuesday rather than a Saturday as they have a good following."
